5	10:20	10:50	0:30:00	Defending Against the Insider Threat Threat from a malicious insider and a careless employee who could be manipulated by social engineering and thus made to part with vital information, is perhaps one of the highest rated risks that enterprises are grappling with today. Information, intellectual property, trade secrets and physical assets are most secure when people inside the organisation work together to mitigate this ever-increasing risk to the enterprise. Smart insider threat programs integrate meaningful human intelligence protocols into existing cyber and physical security solutions and best practices to preempt an insider attack. The session will give you pointers to creating a custom insider threat program to protect your company's assets. Presenter: Sethu Seetharaman, CRMA,CISA, CISSP,CBCP, CPP Senior Vice President & Chief Risk Officer, Mphasis

10	14:52	16:07	1:15:00	Importance of Control Room Design and Operations — Focused on Safety, Security and Business Goals Control room design and operations entail a diverse set of technical and human factors. The control room is a very broad term, covering anything from NASA Mission Control to a Security Gatehouse at a factory to a GSOC. In essence, a control room is a central point that monitors and/or deploys resources — be these process controls or human resources. In short, it is the room where it all happens! This session will strive to bring out their design and operational aspects so as to fit the overall business goals of the organization keeping in view the evolving technology and fast-changing human skill sets. Moderator: GB Singh, Editor SECURITY TODAY Panelists: Sreekumar Narayanan, Managing Partner, Xpertisehub Risk Management Services, LLP Avtar Singh Ghumman, CBCP, Head Jio Security Network Operation Centre Kaushik Ranjan, Director , CSP- Global Security Services in a Major Banking and Financial Services MNC
